The Information and Communication Technology Committee is a Universities New Zealand committee.

It’s purpose is to act collectively to provide leadership and advance the efficient and effective use of information and communications technology in support of teaching, learning, research and administration by students and staff of New Zealand Universities.
To achieve these goals ICTC will:

• Maintain oversight of functions, initiatives from government and relationships that impact on the work of the universities.
• Engage in collaborative relationships.
• Improve services through benchmarking and quality assessment.
• Develop staff capability and culture.
• Provide advice to Universities New Zealand or any of the Universities New Zealand Committees when requested.
ICTC regularly reviews their priorities for short and medium term activities. In 2014 – 2015 the priorities are:

Play an active role in national and international initiatives:

• Establish security standards and initiatives by establishing the Higher Education Security Information Exchange with the NSCS

• Provide feedback in the national e-research strategy – in conjunction with NeSI, NZGL, REANNZ, Tuakiri

• Coordinate the 2014 Tertiary ICT Conference
ICTC regularly reviews their priorities for short and medium term activities. In 2014 – 2015 the priorities are:

Identify & co-ordinate collaborative activities
